PAILED TO BOSS TEXAS.

Congressman Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, has returned to Washington as unexpectedly as he arrived in Texas a short time ago. He went to Texas for the avowed purpose of forcing the democratic candidates for state offices to come to his assistance in securing a repudiation of the limited expansion plank embraced in the state platform of two years ago, by the coming democratic state convenion. He not only learned that these candidates are, almost to a man, stouily in favor of reaffirming that plank, but that the affirming that plank, but that the masses of the democrats of the state are of the same views on the subject. When Bailey arrived in the state he are not stated that he would probably remain until the convention was held; that he proposed to defeat the movement to send expansion delegates to the convention. As soon as it became known throughout the state that he had come all the way from Washington for the purpose of dictating the state platform of the party, his assumed bossism was warmly resented, and he received many letters from political friends urging him to return to his duties at Washing on. He took the advice of these
